Keynote Speaker

FIAMMETTA BORGIA is a Full Professor of International Law at the Department of Law of the University of Rome Tor Vergata, where she carries out her teaching and research activities. She is the Director of the Italian Centre for the Law of the Sea (ICLOS), an inter-university center dedicated to the study of the legal profiles of maritime governance. Her scientific research is rooted in public international law with a generalist approach, focusing more recently on the law of the sea, emerging technologies, and international security profiles.
Throughout her academic career, she has participated and continues to participate in national and international research projects, including collaborations with public institutions, contributing to the analysis of legal issues related to the governance of maritime spaces and the transformations of international law in relation to new technologies.
She is the author of several monographs and numerous scientific contributions published in national and international venues. She regularly participates in national and international conferences and seminars and is actively involved in academic cooperation with foreign universities and research centers.

Project funded by European Commission Erasmus + Programme – Jean Monnet Action Project number 101126599. Funded by the European Union. Views and opinions expressed are however those of the author(s) only and do not necessarily reflect those of the European Union or the European Education and Culture Executive Agency (EACEA). Neither the European Union nor EACEA can be held responsible for them